SleepyCat scaled, the customised system started to face troubles like slow performance, maintenance overhead, and constraints in evolving their unique product logic (bundles, add-ons, variant rules).

Challenges

With their rapid growth, their store first touched, and they crossed all limits of their original WordPress foundation! So, what, once used to work quite simply for a small catalogue, has turned into a maze of custom code and plugins, where each solution itself was adding another layer of complexity.

Soon enough, they had a long list of challenges, consisting of;

- ✓ Performance bottlenecks occur in high-traffic campaigns, especially product launches and sales events.
- ✓ Backend inefficiencies, where even minor updates or logic changes required heavy developer intervention.
- ✓ User experience inconsistencies, especially for customers customising products (selecting sizes, bundles, or add-ons).
- ✓ Limited scalability, as the existing system made it hard to introduce new features quickly or expand product lines.

Our goal was to preserve what really made SleepyCat unique, its customizable product experience, and rebuild the backend architecture to be faster, lighter, and easier to manage.

So, here's how we approached it:

- ✓ Rebuilt complex variant logic: Overcame Shopify's native variant limits by creating a smart SKU-splitting mechanism and a unified front-end interface. Customers could now select material, size, and dimensions seamlessly, without realizing they were interacting with multiple linked products.
- ✓ Custom Bundle Builder: Developed custom product templates for bundle selection & have used Shopify Cart Transformations to calculate pricing dynamically. Moreover, we have also leveraged Checkout Extensions so the user can see the bundled pricing at checkout, and not to mention, we have ensured inventory tracking in real-time.
- ✓ Zipcode-Based Delivery Checker: Integrated a custom-built delivery checker to display real-time availability and delivery timelines based on the user's pin code, so that the last-minute drop-offs can be reduced as much as possible.
- ✓ WhatsApp Automation via Shopify Flow: Streamlined post-purchase communication with automated WhatsApp messages for order confirmations, abandoned carts, and delivery updates to improve engagement and recovery rates.

As a leading shopify development agency India, we have leveraged Shopify Plus's extensibility to transform SleepyCat's store into a high-performance, modular ecosystem that grows alongside their business, without the need for constant technical intervention.
